

Not you! / _Corrigé du fichier de l'élève (p. 60-61)

General comprehension

- A. Two characters are present. Sara and her lover Jack.
- B. Sara is upset / distressed / indignant, she can't understand how her lover, Jack could have given her brother's name to the FBI. Jack tries to justify himself. He tells Sara that he had no choice.

Part 1

- C. The FBI agents
- D. 1. Eric's – 2. Eric – 3. The FBI agents
- E. let him go freely
- F. 1. Somebody else would have given names. – 2. He would have lost his job.
- G. Sara can't accept that her lover, Jack, could have given the name of her own brother. For her, he should never have betrayed her own brother.

Part 2

- H. He joined an anti-Fascist committee when he was eighteen years old.
- I. 1. The anti-Fascist committee – 2. lutter / se battre / s'opposer à – 3. de principe / par principe
- J. be involved in
- K. 1. "they also knew that I had served my country in the war" (l. 21)
2. "[I] hadn't dabbled in politics since then." (l. 22)
- L. the anti-Fascist committee
- M. They wanted to show that they were patriots / that they loved their country.
- N. conspiracy (l. 27) – threat (l. 28) – national security (l. 28)
- O. By accepting to give names, Jack will serve his country. He will also be above suspicion.
- P. planer
- Q. "Face fact, anyone who's been a Communist in the past is going to get found out." (l. 32)
- R. libérer sa conscience

Part 3

- S. Sara, who is the narrator.
- T. logique implacable
- U. 1. trahir – 2. trahison
- V. She cannot accept the idea that Jack had no choice but to cooperate with the FBI and give names. For her, everybody could choose and Jack should have refused to give names like the Hollywood Ten, Arthur Miller or her brother.